'Kokoro' is a single Japanese word we can translate as 'inner being', but which literally embraces two words / concepts, such as 'the mind' and 'the heart'. This solo is the personal research for a uniqueness of being, an inner journey that has become a physical path through space, during which the naked body, through its exposure and specific architecture, is transfigured and becomes a poetic vehicle bringing out images, belonging or not, to an 'unreal world'. These images, deep rooted in a collective consciousness, are sublimated in the story of a personal experience and then transmuted, through the scene, into a collective experience.
